Course Additions: ES 299A Sports Officiating Fundamentals, ES 299A Sports Officiating for Spring Sports

- The department delivered a proposal presentation:
 - ES 226-Needed for title IX (9), it is an emerging sport. The committee recommended review of bullet E in COR course objectives to change the word “meet” to a verb.

GROSSMONT COLLEGE
CURRICULUM COMMITTEE MEETING

- ES 227-, NTS (non-traditional season) is noted under methods of instruction but it will be removed as it is not a method of instruction, rather a participation expectation for students who are registered.
- ES 286 and 288- The department aims to create a coaching certificate in the future. The committee recommended listing a more recent textbook and looking into options for OER textbooks.

4. Information Items

Art

Course Addition: Art 212-

- Missing packet, the committee could not review. It will be added to the next agenda.

Course Modification: ART 142

- A concern was raised about instructional facilities being a list of equipment/technology requests, rather than minimal instructional facilities necessary to run the course. The committee discussed what level of specificity is appropriate for this section and agreed that as a standardized document, the COR should list general expectations.

Child Development

Course Modification: CD 123

Communications

Course Modification: COMM 145

- The department delivered Proposal Presentation: Since this course is not offered at any other community college, the department considers it a necessary and innovative addition to their curriculum. The idea that leadership and communication go hand in hand informed the development of this course. This course opens the door for a partnership with San Diego State who has expressed interest in collaboration.

Economics

Degree Modification: AA-T

Course Modification: ECON 215

- The course objectives section of the COR specifies needing excel, the committee discussed whether other software was also acceptable and noted it as a question for the CPR. The committee also recommended exploring OER options for the course textbook requirements and noted that the course title and description need revision.

English

Course Modification: ENGL 271

Ethnic Studies

Course Modification: ETHN 143, 145

Course Addition: ETHN 201

- The committee will bring this course back at the next meeting to allow time for further review. It was noted that bullet C of the course objectives is too broad. Also, since it will no longer be cross-listed with History, further revisions to the COR are needed.

History

Course Addition: HIST 157

- The department delivered a proposal presentation:
 - Hist 170 - This course has been in the making for a long time to address a huge gap in what the history department teaches.
 - Hist 172- Has a specific focus on Asian American, Latin American, Pacific Islander, and other minority groups and their relationship to gender identity/sexuality and how it affects their views of the afterlife. SDSU has a very popular death and dying course, so the department expects interest in the course will be high.

GROSSMONT COLLEGE
CURRICULUM COMMITTEE MEETING

- Hist 173- The history curriculum currently lacks thematic history. This course was created to examine the contributions of women, African American, LGBTQ, and other minority populations and their contributions to the field of technology. It also examines technology-based practices in policing and surveillance.

5. Math Department Guests: Jenny VandenEynden and Susan Working

A. Course Addition Proposals: MATH 082, 099NC, 171

- Department chairs reviewed the math department flow-chart. Math 171 will be an optional innovative prep for calculus; however, this course does not automatically clear the prerequisite for calculus (Math 180).
- The committee noted that Math 180L and 280L are missing from the flow-chart, but course deletion forms have not been submitted. The math department confirmed they are not planning to offer the 180/280 labs.
- Math 099NC is proposed as a no credit support lab with an instructor present throughout the week. The lab will be open entry, open exit with an expectation of 10 hours of attendance for the term. The committee inquired how attendance will be tracked and it was suggested that students could use a Google form to check in and out. The committee will find out if there is a minimum amount of hours a no credit course has to be. The course will be graded as Pass/No Pass.
- Math 082 is supplemental support (optional) for Math 280
